

Jason French
1331 23rd Avenue Apartment #6
San Francisco CA 94122

Aug 31st 2018

Via ECFS
Marlene H. Dortch, Secretary
Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street, S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20554

Re: In the Matter of Petition of USTelecom for Forbearance Pursuant to 47 U.S.C. Section 160(c); WC Docket No. 18-141; Category 1

Dear FCC,

I live in San Francisco, and before having Sonic Gigabyte Fiber internet, my only decent high speed option was Comcast. Before Sonic, Comcast basically had a monopoly on San Francisco for high speed internet. Comcast has horrible customer service, and doesn't care about customers or the quality of their service. I know this first hand, as I used to sell internet and cable to apartment buildings in San Francisco. I was disgusted with the way Comcast deals with customers, so I quit due to ethical reasons.

Sonic has worked hard to provide the level of service that Comcast doesn't care to. The same can be said for AT&T; they are too big and greedy to care about the needs of customers. If you allow USTelecom to successfully take away access to critical un-bundled network elements, then you are supporting corporate monopolies and effectively snuffing out competition from up and coming companies like Sonic. The FCC already dropped the ball by their ridiculous vote to repeal net neutrality; now you want to allow major corporations to block competition? Show that you still care about the voice of the people in the United States and do not allow USTelecom to snuff out competition from smaller companies that threaten to offer better service than them. Show that the people in the FCC have not completely sold out to the government and major corporations, and still care to do the right thing by keeping our internet service competitive!

Jason French